12th International Mines Rescue Competition Beaver, West Virginia, USA September 12 to 18, 2020

Background

The purpose of the International Mines Rescue Body (IMRB) is to promote mine rescue at the international level and to improve mine rescue knowledge and practices through global cooperation. Since its founding, the International Mines Rescue Body's biennial conferences and competitions have charted and marked the growth and development not only of the organization, but also of mine rescue organizations around the world as they share knowledge and vision required to improve mine safety.

Sponsoring the International Mines Rescue Competition (IMRC) gives your company the opportunity to align itself with the values of health and safety, and target the World's mining community. Since 1999, the International Mines Rescue Body (IMRB) has promoted the bi-annual, competition which attracts hundreds of delegates from the mining industry around the world, and provides a forum to share knowledge and improve response capability.

Sponsors are a valued part of this event. They allow the IMRC to promote health and safety in to the mining industry and in return IMRC will ensure sponsors receive maximum exposure and recognition before, during and after the event.

Sponsors can choose from three different levels of sponsorship: Platinum, Gold, and Silver. We also have additional Sponsorship opportunities available, but ask that you contact us directly. See the following pages for details of each level. A copy of our International Mines Rescue Competition 2020 brochure can be found at:

12th International Mines Rescue Competition Beaver, West Virginia, USA September 12 to 18, 2020

Be a part of the acclaimed International Mines Rescue brotherhood by sponsoring the international competition!

The International Mines Rescue Competition has evolved into a prestigious event that attracts teams from every corner of the world.

Since 1999, teams from across the world gather in the host country, bi-annually, to vie for the coveted international title.

Competitors are intensely serious, sweating their way through demanding emergency scenarios with personal, team and company reputations on the line.

The awards banquet, the culmination of the event, attracts more than 400 people, eager to learn the results, honour winners of specialty skills, and crown the best team in the world.

Company executives, government officials, foreign visitors, mine rescue volunteers and family members from around the world gather, meet and mingle like the extended family they are; watching teams, renewing acquaintances and enjoying the social events surrounding the competition.

About the Competition:

The International Mines Rescue Body (IMRB) is an organization that brings the entire mine rescue world together regularly. The bi-annual International Mines Rescue Competition is viewed globally as a premier opportunity for showcasing mine rescue skills.

Your company can join and support this event.
